Concert and Fireworks Will Mark the Fourth at Lake Park

by Barbara Bonham Young
Fireworks Productions, Inc., will provide the fireworks again for Greenbelt's July Fourth lakeside display. As usual, it will begin at dusk and last from 20 minutes to half an hour, according to Acting Public Works Director Kenny Hall. Hall said the fireworks will cost the city $8,500, the same amount as last year's display.
The fireworks will be preceded by a free concert by the Greenbelt Concert Band, led by conductor Tom Cherix, at Buddy Attick Park at 7 p.m. For additional information call Georgia Hughes, arts assistant, at 301-397-2208. For fireworks information call the Public Works Department at 301-474-8004.

Setting up is expected to begin at 5 a.m. for the 12 Public Works employees who will then work till about 11 p.m., Hall estimated, to complete all their tasks. Besides fireworks preparation, these include placing barricades and temporary no parking signs, as well as assisting the Recreation Department with the band concert set-up. (See adjoining list of events.)

Police Officer George Mathews told the News Review that a police command post is planned for the northern part of the lake park closest to the main parking lot. The command post containing a first-aid station, will be under a tent. Personnel there will handle lost children and reports of lost children, Mathews said. Portable rest rooms will be located at the west end of the park, behind the playground. The city's recycling center will be closed on July 4.

Parking at the Lake

This year police are reserving the parking lot for handicapped and elderly persons, vendors who have permits, and VIPs. Mathews points out that handicapped tags on a vehicle or a handicapped placard hanging from the mirror or placed on the dashboard will not automatically guarantee a parking place. The vehicle must have a handicapped or elderly person on board. A vehicle with an obviously handicapped and/or elderly person will be permitted to park in the lakeside lot, even if the vehicle does not display handicapped tags or a placard, Mathews continued. He added that parking permit holders need to be aware that their permit will not guarantee a parking space because preference will be given to the handicapped and elderly. Temporary no parking signs on surrounding streets must be obeyed, since towing will take place.

Kenilworth Ave. Parking

Congestion on Kenilworth Avenue can make it difficult and dangerous for ambulances and fire trucks to get through, police point out. While parking on the median is permitted, any vehicle protruding onto Kenilworth or its shoulder portion will be required to move. Further, motorists will not be allowed to stop in the roadway and watch fireworks after they begin.

At the conclusion of the fireworks, two lanes of traffic will be allowed on Crescent Road toward Kenilworth Avenue to expedite the clearing of traffic from the parking lot and surrounding streets. Consequently, for a time no vehicles will be able to enter Crescent Road from Kenilworth.

Motorists exiting from I-95 will not be allowed to proceed north but will be directed south on Kenilworth. Motorists needing to get into Old Greenbelt are advised to make a left onto Greenbelt Road and another left onto Lakecrest Drive just past the American Legion or a left onto Southway.

According to police, temporary traffic patterns are expected to be in effect for roughly a half-hour after the fireworks, barring accidents or other emergencies.

Aquatic Center

The Aquatic and Fitness Center indoor pool and fitness wing will be open from 8 a.m. to 7:45 p.m. on July Fourth. The outdoor pool will be open from 10 a.m. to 7:45 p.m.

Former Mayor Castaldi Now Governor Glendening's Aide

by Barry Bernstein
Life is like a box of chocolates; you never know what you are going to get. This is how I can best describe former Mayor of Greenbelt, Richard Castaldi's career.
Castaldi, who now works for Governor Parris N. Glendening as director of Intergovernmental Affairs in Annapolis, says that he was shocked to be picked for this position. "I went on a vacation and when I came back home, I found a message left for me by Major Riddick (Chief of Staff for Glendening) that I was being considered for a vacancy in state government. I interviewed with Riddick and the governor." According to Castaldi, the governor started to introduce him as the next director to fellow colleagues that same day, inferring that he had got the job. "I thought it would be a longer process to be hired but it wasn't."
Glendening created the job just five years ago. Castaldi replaced Lyle Fowlkes, an aide to the governor for some time who resigned at the end of 1998 to work for an Annapolis lobbying firm.

Starting in January of '99, Castaldi began this job. He pointed out to me that many Greenbelt residents were unsure if he still lived in the city because he does not work here anymore. Castaldi, 56, and his wife still live in Greenbelt East, but it is not surprising that he is not around town that often since he is so involved with his job in the capital.

"It's a different job when you are an elected person setting policy, proposing legislation. There's a big difference between that and now staffing [working] for an elected official." Castaldi said he can best describe the atmosphere where he works like the TV show "The West Wing," a behind-the-scenes glimpse into the inner-workings of the Oval Office according to NBC website www.nbc.com. "What I found out is that the folks down there [Annapolis] have two or three balls in the air at one time."

"Outstanding Citizen" Will Be Named by Committee

by James Giese

For over a quarter century, a Greenbelter has been recognized each year as Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen at the opening ceremonies of the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival. Now a tradition of the city, it is commemorated in a plaque that hangs in the lobby of the Greenbelt Community Center listing all 28 recipients since 1973. When this year's festival begins, a new name will be added. Who will it be? What will that person have done to win such recognition? At this time nobody knows.

The committee that makes the selection is still seeking nominations. Written nominations can be submitted until August 7 to Robert Zugby, Chair, Greenbelt Outstanding Citizen Committee, 94 Ridge Rd., Greenbelt, MD 20770. (See ad in this newspaper.)

Who are the members of the committee? Although their names are not a secret, they are a publicity-shy group as far as this committee work is concerned. There are seven of them — all well-known community activists in their own right, but none eligible to receive the award so long as they serve on the committee.

Sponsored by the Labor Day Festival Committee, but acting independently of it, the elected chair of the Labor Day Festival Committee selects the committee chair, who, in turn, selects the other members. The committee does its work behind closed doors. Besides selecting each year's recipient, the committee also plans the award ceremony, arranges publicity for the award, and seeks contributions and gifts for the recipient. In recent years, the Greenbelt Rotary Club has made substantial cash contributions to help cover the cost of the program and to pay for the recognition plaque given to the honoree. The committee welcomes the donation of other significant gifts for presentation to the year's winner. Persons interested in making such a donation should contact Zugby at 301-345-2065 (e-mail: rzugby@aol.com).

What does it take to become the outstanding citizen? The 28 former recipients have been involved in a wide variety of volunteer work. If there is one thing that characterizes them all, it is a willingness to help others and to work tirelessly for the benefit of our community. While some recipients have been active in performing volunteer work outside the community, and that work has been considered in their selection, the recipients have all been chosen for their efforts to make Greenbelt a better place in which to live.

Let's Be Open about Open Space

For some time, we have believed that the Greenbelt City Council was meeting in executive sessions to plan and arrange for the purchase of land. Since the public and the press are barred from executive sessions we had no tangible evidence that this was a matter we could publicly report.

Then, without previous notice, at its June 5 regular meeting, council adopted a plan, as required by the county, for use of state open-space funds allocated to the city. These funds can be used both for land acquisition and for park improvements. Unfortunately, this subject was introduced very late at night, with little discussion by council. No citizen comments were made at all since those attending for other public issues had gone home. The plan as presented is nebulous: the city intends to buy a 10-acre parcel somewhere in Greenbelt East, a one-acre parcel somewhere east of Kenilworth and a one-acre parcel somewhere in the center of town. It will also use some funds for playground safety improvements. In addition, City Manager Michael McLaughlin assured council that nothing in these plans was so fixed that the council couldn't change it.

Over the past decades, the city has purchased many parcels of land. Yet we cannot think of one instance where the city council did not first publicly declare its intent to buy a specific parcel of land.

Possibly council members believe that by acting in secret, they can make better purchase deals. Even if this were true, we object to council's acting in secret. Greenbelt government has long been noted for being open and for encouraging public participation in the decision-making process. If it costs more money to do business in the open, in the long run it pays off by garnering the support of Greenbelt citizens.

We urge council to declare its intentions publicly for the use of open space funds. Council and the city staff must justify why they wish to spend the city's funds as they have proposed. Greenbelt citizens (and property owners) need to be given the opportunity to make comments and to suggest alternative proposals to those being considered for action.

Let's keep the doors to the council room open.

Letters to the Editor

Mischaracterization

For former City Manager James Giese to say that "some councilmembers gave lip service to cutting the budget" is a mischaracterization ("As I See It", GNR, June 22.) It is unfair at best for Giese to say that he didn't see "any real efforts made," since I personally placed into his hands a copy of the memo I wrote to council detailing $200,000 of budget cuts I favored.

However, the modest effort I made to specify items to cut was something that I undertook reluctantly, since I believe that the city manager is best positioned to identify the specific places where his budget can sustain reductions without compromising service delivery. But implying that a councilmember can legitimately call for a tighter budget only if he or she is willing to dissect all details of the manager's proposed budget and then reconstruct them in a more acceptable form, assumes a very different role for council in running the city. That degree of engagement in the day-to-day operations is not consistent with the council-manager form of government that Greenbelt has enjoyed since its inception.

I have a day job, a family, and other interests in life — and, sorry, but $5,000 a year doesn't buy my services as a full-time budget analyst and efficiency expert. (Nor would the city manager want me hanging around city hall doing that kind of work.) Rather, the job of councilmembers is to provide broad policy direction for the manager to carry out, and to evaluate his performance. It is my hope that by voicing my concerns, and those of the many people who have spoken with me about this, that the manager and his staff will prepare a budget next year that better reconciles Greenbelters' needs, wants, and means. That's all I can rightly do.

For the record, I am not instinctively anti-tax. In fact, I like what government can do when it's adequately funded and responsive to peoples' needs. I support repeal of TRIM, for instance, because it has pauperized our schools and eroded the public's respect and confidence in the school system. And stronger local schools, I believe, would ultimately boost Greenbelt's tax yield through increased assessments. But, as Giese says, if you want services, you have to pay for them.

City Lacks Vision

I read with considerable interest James Giese's column on Thursday, June 22 (Explanation of Rising Tax Rates). His article provides a lot of valuable information and makes several good points. However, I wish to clarify a point that he made.

He stated that he is not aware of any person coming before the city council to seek budget cuts or reduced taxes, and therefore the council is reasonable in continuing to raise taxes because there is a lack of opposition from citizens. This is only partially accurate.

I came before the council at its first public hearing on the budget in May to argue that raising taxes for the seventh straight year without a plan to develop our tax base is unacceptable. I agree completely with Janet Parker, who said that taxation is the price of a civilized society. A few extra dollars this year will not hurt me. Greenbelt should indeed continue to improve its already top-quality service to its citizens.

However, the present booming economy is causing politicians elsewhere to argue about how to spend surplus revenues. If Greenbelt is currently suffering from flat tax growth, then we need to examine why we are not sharing in the economic prosperity.

Council members are our leaders. They have an obligation to develop a vision and long-term plans to ensure that city revenues grow at least as fast as our service/expenditure needs. To date, I have yet to see such a vision or plan coming from our council members.

I came before the council to express my concern on the lack of such a vision or plan. I suggested that the council should do what many other jurisdictions are doing — develop a long-range plan, backed with the staff and resources to enact it, to attract higher quality businesses to Greenbelt without developing further land. This means upgrading existing business locations and offices to attract such businesses, thus boosting tax revenues for the city.

The council's response was threefold: 1) we have no money, 2) we already are working with the state assessment office to figure out what to do, and 3) the public doesn't mind paying for a seventh straight year of increasing taxes. This response is disappointing: working with the state assessment office is no substitute for developing a plan and a vision; the money needed is an investment in our future, not merely an increased expense; and the mere absence of public objection should not be mistaken for its endorsement of plans it may not even be aware of. The citizens of Greenbelt should not be taken for granted.

The city of Greenbelt needs a vision or long-range plan to ensure that we will be able to weather the next economic downturn. Without a vision or plan to do so, we make it harder for the next generation to carry on Greenbelt's rich heritage of community involvement and public service.

Uncommunicative?

On Monday, June 19 I attended the County Council hearing on the proposed development around the Greenbelt Metro Station. At that hearing we were told by Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning that it had no projections on the traffic impact of the development on surrounding roads.

On Wednesday, June 21 I attended a public information meeting on the US 1/MD 201 Corridor Study. One of the displays showed that traffic was projected to increase 50% on the roads surrounding Greenbelt Metro Station during the next 20 years. When I asked a spokesperson for the State Highway Administration if this increase included projections for traffic generated by development around Greenbelt Metro Station I was told it did.

Wouldn't it be a good idea if agencies within our state communicated with each other?

Change Not Minor

We are writing in response to a comment by James Giese in the June 22 Greenbelt News Review. Giese characterized the proposal to reduce evening hours at the Aquatic and Fitness Center as a "minor change in service." The proposed change was not minor to us because we use the Center in the later evening hours for our exercise program. That is why we voiced our concern in a letter to the City Council and in testimony during the second public hearing on the budget. We applaud the

Commendation

I want to commend the staff at the Greenbelt Fitness Center for their efforts on behalf of Dr. Till Bergemann at the time of his cardiac arrest at their facility. They did everything they could to help him and I felt that their efforts were exemplary.

Harmful?

I was surprised to learn in the latest issue of Audubon magazine that three of the chemicals commonly used in lawn and garden pesticides kill thousands of birds every year. I wonder, if it's harmful for birds, could it be harmful to people? To kids' developing bodies? Pets? Could pets track in more than just dirt on their feet?

Studies are ensuing, but luckily we don't have to wait for results to take some preventive action — there are alternatives to using known-to-be-harmful pesticides.

To request the Audubon Guide to Home Pesticides, call 800-274-4201, fax 212-477-9069 or send email to editor@audubon.org.

Learn About Forests At Greenbelt Park

Urban forests make up more and more forest preserves. They are critical for watershed protection and recreation. Their dynamics and ecology are unique compared to larger forests and managing them is often harder.

On Saturday, July 1, at 5 p.m., Greenbelt Park officials will conduct a program on the importance of these forests in people's lives. Meet at the Ranger Station.

For directions or further information call the park at 301-344-3944.

Poetry Plus Has New Meeting Day

Poetry Plus will now meet on the second Saturday of each month at the Greenbelt library from 10:30 a.m. to noon. The group chooses a subject or a poet to discuss. Those interested may bring poems on the subject or by the poet chosen.

The subject for July 8 is "The Natural World" and for August 12, "Human Nature."

This Week's Movie Is "East Is East"

The movie for the week beginning June 30 at Old Greenbelt Theatre will be "East Is East". The movie is billed as a ribald comedy about a Pakistani-British family in Salford, northern England. Om Puri plays the father, owner of a chip shop (fast food restaurant) who generally tries to bully his children into observing the old ways and marriage customs. The children, however, are in synch with the swinging '60s, which arrived late in Salford. Puri, who is sadly unknown to most American audiences, is considered a performer of towering humanity, sadness and humor in his country, India, and is favorably compared to Alec Guinness.

OBITUARIES

Walter Penney

Walter Penney

On June 24, 2000, longtime Greenbelt resident Walter Francis Penney died peacefully in his Greenbelt home at age 87.

He was born and raised in New York City and West Hoboken (now part of Union City), the son of a New York City fireman. At 16 he got his first job at the New York Public Library. At 17 he received a scholarship for Cooper Union University in New York, based on a competitive exam. At the same time he started work at the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company as an actuarial. During World War II he answered the government's call for mathematicians by moving to Washington, D.C. to join the US Navy's Crypto Analysis Group (later to become the N.S.A.). When the N.S.A. moved to Ft. Meade he moved in 1957 with his family into their current home on Northway. He retired in 1977.

Walter loved intellectual challenges - he was a born puzzler, writing and solving them. His columns, "Problem of the Month," appeared over the years in the "Crypto-Mathematics Institute Notices." These were bundled in 1974 into a book called "Penney's Puzzles." He also wrote a monthly mathematical puzzle column in "Computers and Automation," and published numerous articles in the Journal of Recreational Linguistics, the American Mathematical Monthly, the Journal of the Association of Computing Machinery and the Mathematics Magazine. He, along with two friends, conducted over many years a fiendishly difficult "Dictionary Rally." In 1950 he won the Times-Herald Spelling Bee. He taught himself several languages, including Finnish, Russian, Dutch and French. He was an avid chess player, and belonged to the Federal Bridge League. He was a member of Mensa, Intertel and several professional societies.

During his retirement he was a good example of how Greenbelt enables seniors to live life to its fullest - even with gradually increasing personal limitations. At first he enjoyed his weekly "soak" in the hot-tub, followed by a two-lap swim, and alternated by Sunday morning workouts in the gym under the watchful eye of his oldest son. When he was no longer able to drive, he

Thomas A. Perry

Thomas A. Perry, age 38, died on Wednesday, June 21, 2000. A tree service worker, he was electrocuted when he grasped a tree branch that was touching a power line.

He served as a volunteer for Our House Youth Home in Ellicott City for many years.

Mr. Perry is survived by his parents Patricia and Robert Perry; brothers Michael and Stephen Perry; sisters Elizabeth and Diane Perry; loving companion Gena Wilson; and nephews Morgan and Brennan Perry.

A Mass of Christian Burial was held at St. Andrew Apostle Church, Silver Spring on Saturday, June 24. Interment was private.

Memorial contributions may be made to Our House Youth Home, 4110 College Ave., Ellicott City, MD 21043.

maintained his independence by walking to the barber, the bank, the library and the Co-op. The "Food and Friendship" senior luncheon program at the Community Center offered the opportunity of rehashing daily events with others. Sitting at the Lake and feeding the ducks became a favorite pastime, followed, in the last year, by just sitting under the green umbrellas in the Center and waving a "Hello" to friends. Not too long ago even watching part of a movie at the Greenbelt Theatre was not too tiring. And when it rained he could get some exercise by walking the hallways of the Community Center.

Walter is survived by his wife Leonie Penney and children Walter Penney of Takoma Park, Olga Garber of Leesburg, VA, and Bernard Penney of Chapel Hill, N.C., and by his brother Charles of Columbia, MD. Walter has 10 grandchildren.

A Memorial Service - a Celebration of his Life - was held on Thursday, June 29 at 10 a.m. at the Greenbelt Municipal Building, followed by interment at the Greenbelt Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be sent to the American Heart Association; Walter F. Penney Memorial; Memorials & Tributes Center; PO Box 5216, Glen Allen, VA 23058-5216.

Community Church Wins the Holy Sole

Once again the Greenbelt Community Church has won the Holy Sole award for having the most walkers at the annual Hyattsville CROP WALK. This is the seventh consecutive year the Community Church has won the award. This year 88 people from the church community walked.

CROP WALK is sponsored by Church World Service to raise money to help fight hunger locally and around the world. CROP WALKs are held all over the country. One quarter of the money raised by a local CROP WALK stays in the local area to do things like assist food banks and support hunger-fighting programs.

The Community Church raised $6151 and more than $24,000 was raised by the churches and organizations that participated in the Hyattsville CROP WALK.

In the last 15 years $186 million has been raised by CROP WALK. Church World Service is a ministry of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A.

one who should be an Outstanding Citizen who hasn't yet been named? For one of two reasons, that's very possible. That person may not previously have been nominated. If this is the case, it is up to you to send Bob Zugby a letter of nomination. On the other hand, the person you have in mind may have been nominated but not chosen, simply because the committee could pick only one from a long list of highly qualified nominees. Committee members carefully review all the information made available to them (the more they get, the easier their job is). Usually the committee members cannot agree on one person and they must deliberate, eliminate and compromise before the selection is made.

Because so many good people are working for the benefit of our city, the committee urges nominators not to give up if their candidate has been passed over before. Your favorite could be this year's winner.

WHO WILL BE NEXT?

Please help the Outstanding Citizen Committee find the first outstanding citizen in the new millennium. Submit your nomination for that person whose volunteer service to our community has made him or her your choice to be the Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen of 2000.

City Clerk

Castaldi deals directly with the 157 towns and cities as well as the 23 counties across the state. "I intercede with problems between the state government and the locals. They [locals] from time to time want to meet with the governor and I establish those meetings." He is the liaison with the governor for the Maryland Municipal Association that represents all these cities and towns in the state government. He also reviews bills that are sent from the House of Delegates to the governor and focuses specifically on how legislation will affect counties and cities throughout the state. He makes recommendations to the governor and lets him know what specific committees are thinking in terms of the bills they send along for passage into law. If need be, he also delivers speeches on behalf of the governor.

"The Governor expects us to review things to make sure they will do what they [bills] say they are going to do. He expects things to be done on time and in order."

Castaldi is proud of some of the accomplishments the governor has made, including improvements in education, environmental concerns, equality issues for women and minorities, and an array of other issues. "He's concerned that his legacy [will be remembered] for a diverse operating government."

A History of Greenbelt Politics

Born (October 24, 1944) and raised in Greenbelt, Castaldi grew up in the family home at 11-V Ridge Road. His parents moved to Greenbelt in 1938 from New York City after his father had found work with the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, making them one of Greenbelt's pioneer families. Family life for Castaldi was based around old Italian family traditions that encouraged Castaldi and his three siblings to be active in the community.

He graduated from Beltsville's High Point High School. "I really was not very political [in high school]; I was one of those people that took an interest in sports — football, archery and Little League." After high school, he majored in business administration at the University of Maryland. Castaldi did not finish his degree, but hopes to go back to school one day in the future. While attending college, he began working at Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC).

Castaldi may not have been very active in politics in high school, but during his college days he became more involved. "I grew up in Greenbelt and was waiting to give something back," he says. While still living in GHI, Castaldi ran into Dick Pilski, who was a city councilmember. Pilski suggested that Castaldi's background at MNCPPC, where he had worked for 20 years as supervisor of Zoning Information and Permits, would help him to get a position on council.

Soon after, Castaldi got some petitions signed for his candidacy (he was 1 out of 13 candidates running for election) and he managed to come out among the top five who were elected. He was only 27. "If you want to run for something, you have to do it yourself and I won because of that."

Some of his notable accomplishments on city council include the construction of Greenway Center, which used to be Schrom Airport. He was also instrumental in the creation of Greenbelt Lake Park. He served on a variety of boards and committees, including the Council of Government's Rape Task Force, the Human Resources Policy Board and the National League of Cities' Open Space Committee.

Castaldi remained on city council from 1973 to 1982; he became mayor in 1981 and served for roughly a year. He is proud of his easement of red tape in the city in order to help businesses function better. He also worked diligently on trying to unify all sections of the city and maintaining personal contact with many citizens. "While I was mayor, residents of Greenbelt called me because trash wasn't picked up [in their area], and they were having a wedding in their yard the next day; so I got in my station wagon and picked up the trash. To me, it was easier to pick it up than call someone; it's those kinds of things that people want. People just want to have someone to listen to even if you can't solve their problem."

Castaldi says there are still many problems in city politics that he wants changed. "I would like to see elections every four years instead of two. I believe that when you are running that often, the possibility is that you don't make the best decisions when you are always in campaign mode. When you look at the history of city council, there is a very low turnover in who is on it; plus it is very expensive and costly both from city staff time and other expenses."

Also, he would like to see more cooperation between different sections of the community, which he feels would help make advances for residents. "I would like to see more high quality restaurants, well-maintained roads and an open space initiative." Castaldi is also not in favor of the reconfiguration of Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) that calls for combining it with nearby Duval High School.

Movin' On Up

One might say that the box of chocolates became more diversified as Castaldi progressed in his political career. In 1982, after just a year at being mayor, he ran for Prince George's County Council in the 4th district. His interest in the County Council came after a redistricting that caused Bowie to be a part of the same district as Greenbelt. Apparently Bowie had more political clout than Greenbelt and he was very concerned about it.

With the help of the Greenbelt Democratic Coordinating Committee and other members of the community, Castaldi was able to pull ahead of opponent Al Golato by 600 votes. He remembers his campaign headquarters in the Charlestowne North high rise building: "Ed Putens [City Council member who helped with the campaign] was worried; I came into the office with a bottle of champagne...Anne

[his wife] said that I had lost it...but I knew I didn't. It was a shock to almost everyone that we won. I owe it to the people of Greenbelt; I couldn't have done it without that support at home."

Some of Castaldi's major achievements came while he served on the County Council. He initiated much in the way of the open space initiative in the county. He was also appointed in 1982 by then County Executive Parris N. Glendening to the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority's (WMATA) Board of Directors, where he served two terms as chairman. He was influential in getting the de-icer on the metro's third rail and started the newspaper-recycling program.

"I got Metro to start a recycling and newspaper program; it was the first metro system in the country doing this and it saved a lot of trees." He also came up with the design for an attractive gate at the entrances to Metro stations in order to curb drug addicts and homeless people from gathering there. "If you don't have that safety element, you won't get people to use mass transit."

He also served as chairman of the Washington Suburban Transit Commission (WSTC), as a member of the National Association of Counties (NACO) Transportation Steering Committee and was chairman of the Prince George's County Council's Planning and Zoning Committees. Castaldi is considered an expert in the field of zoning and development and has lectured at Prince George's Community College and the University of Maryland in these subject areas.

Outside of Politics

In 1994, Castaldi retired from politics and became a land-use consultant for five years, in part because his mother had died following a series of strokes and his father needed to be cared for in Florida. "When my mom passed away, I was in the middle of a campaign for county executive. I made a hard decision and dropped out of the campaign."

Today he looks back at his political career and weighs its advantages and disadvantages. "For one thing, I don't run for reelection every two or four years. Whenever you are an elected official, you are always on alert. I wouldn't trade any moment on city or county council; it may not have been great all the time but it was fun accomplishing a lot. It's like life — you do the best you can and you hope the people appreciate that you were there and you made a difference."

Castaldi's wife, Ann who is chairman of special education at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, has a very positive outlook on life without politics. "Being an elected official is all-consuming; it's nights, weekends and holidays. It is a whole lifestyle and now we have a different lifestyle that we love just as much."

Castaldi feels that his political involvement helped his two daughters to be successful as well. "My daughters became more astute." Both daughters, Lisa and Tina, are grown up now. Lisa is married to a coast guardsman and they live in Herndon, VA. Tina lives in California and runs her own fitness club. She has also had TV acting roles on the shows of "Nash Bridges" and "Hard Copy."

Now that his two daughters are grown, Castaldi and his wife look to their two dogs, Magic and Ali (black Labradors), for support on the political front. "One is conservative and one is liberal. Now they're our kids; we had to buy a king size bed for them."

Besides the joy of their dogs, the Castaldis love to go to their Charles County retreat on the Potomac River in order to wind down. They own about 12 acres of land and enjoy crabbing when there.

Castaldi has about two more years on Glendening's staff and is not sure what he'll do after that. "I keep all of my options; I don't have any plans."

State Offers Free Tourism Brochures

The Maryland Office of Tourism Development has unveiled its newest tourism brochure, "Multicultural Maryland." The 16-page, full-color brochure celebrates Maryland's African-American heritage with a detailed listing of historic sites and attractions across the state, including the Kunta Kinte-Alex Haley Memorial in Annapolis and Harriet Tubman's birthplace on the Eastern Shore.

This brochure is the first statewide listing of Maryland's many monuments and treasures that illustrate the critical role that African-Americans played in Maryland's history.

Following the Great Depression and World War II, manufacturers began to mass produce toys and offer them for sale in five and dime stores at affordable prices. No longer the exclusive commodity of the wealthy child, toys such as metal trains and erector sets were popular with all children.

Gender related toys were popular with little girls who imitated their mothers. The porcelain tea set, dolls and metal doll bed now in the Greenbelt Museum collection formerly belonged to pioneer Greenbelter Marion Benson Hastings. Excerpts from Marion's diary about her early years in Greenbelt are also on display in the Greenbelt Museum's exhibition on Planned Play: Childhood in the Ideal Community, Greenbelt Community Center Exhibition Room, 15 Crescent Road.

ACE Holds Reading Program for Summer

The Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) is sponsoring a summer reading program this year for Greenbelt students from preschool to high school.

The program was suggested by ACE member Joseph Otterman, who was concerned that some people were not encouraging their children to read over the summer vacation. ACE members discussed how they themselves remembered enjoying their summer reading as children. The committee therefore decided to sponsor a summer reading program and involve students from all ages in order to help them discover that reading is fun.

ACE will involve students by getting their recommendations of enjoyable books. Students who participate will be asked to give ACE a short review of the books they have read. Their comments about the books will then be publicized on the Greenbelt web site throughout the summer. ACE also plans to produce several short cable television shows with the students about the books they recommend others might read this summer.

At the end of the summer, during the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival, students will receive certificates and other gifts for their participation. They will also be invited to march with the committee in the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival parade.

Each time participants finish a book, they will be asked to send their thoughts about the book to ACE. The following information will be requested: name of the book, author of the book, what did you think of the book? did you like it? why or why not? would you tell you friends to read this book?

To join the ACE Summer Reading Program, people should contact the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) at the Greenbelt CARES office, Greenbelt Municipal Building, 25 Crescent Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770; or e-mail: CARES@ci.Greenbelt.Md.US.

Greebelt Treblemakers who presented "Sis! Boom! Bah!," a musical, on June 1 and 2 at Greenbelt Elementary School.

A Review

Sis! Boom! Bah! Cheered Audiences and Players

by Barbara Likowski

Sis! Boom! Bah!, a musical presented by Greenbelt Elementary School Treblemakers (chorus), was a huge success at all three performances on June 1 and 2 at the school. Weeks later people can still be heard saying what a great program it was — "the best ever."

The play, written by Ruth Roberts and Bill Katz, was directed by Greenbelt's music teacher Leslieanne Bird.

The story revolved around Greenbelt High School's football team's game and there were songs and cheers to encourage the team. There was a lot of humor, too. Everybody in the performance seemed to be enjoying it as much as the audience. Tensions were high until eventually word came that Greenbelt High's team had won! Of course!

The actors who carried the story did a great job. We laughed when Coach Gooch (Susan Lahr) lost her team, wondered who the announcer we heard but didn't see was (Miah Herrera) and followed Rockne and Zeus (Anthony Hall and Keith Tolbert) as they kept us informed about what was going on. They had a great chorus to back them up.

Cheerleaders Tiasha Boyd, Samantha Ingerham, Diana Omoeni, Jade Washington and Sierra Wilson were peppy and chorus and audience responded to their cheers.

Every time the team — Tyrone Brown, Darnzell Harris, Mark Manley, Rodney Martin, Damien

Snyder and Kelli Thibou stood up, the audience cheered and clapped. It was that kind of play the audience became part of it.

The Treblemakers have worked hard all year, giving up their time to practice for this and other performances.

Fifth grade chorus members are: Samantha Ingerham, Nikkita Jackson, Rebecca Myers, Meghan O'Connell, Natasha Reed, Janee Acevero, Diana Omoeni, Shannon Rippian, Jade Washington, Jennah Yunger, Emily Dean, Kenya Mickle, Vanessa Morel, April Pitts, Karen Sankar, Michael Walker, Holly Ferguson, Brandon Grant, Saba Gyemfi, Darnzell Harris, Sierra Wilson, Shaina Wisler, Nola George, Jenay Jenkins, Hawa Koker, Jarren Long, Kendra McCullough, Mark Manley, Precious Smith, Kelli Thibou, Susan Lahr, Sana Bukhari, Arturo Olivia, Arnold Quintanilla, Rodney Martin, Damien Snyder, Cheri Bailey, Toni Pearson and Ashley Johnson.

Sixth graders: Andre Brown, Traci Buemi, Antonia Campbell, Shantelle Dare, Jannique Greenland, Anthony Hall, Cassandra Hetzel, Jerriann King, Keirra Shinault, Jennifer Swope, Keith Tolbert, Alexis Washington, Amber Chase, Miah Herrera, Kenneth Huggins, Harold Smith, Shandara Ward, Amanda Bridendolph, Tyrone Brown and Tiasha Boyd.

Members of the County Honors Chorus were: Rebecca Myers, Janee Acevero, Susan Lahr, and Cheri Bailey.

Kudos to Greenbelt

Describing efforts or lack of efforts to preserve Art Deco and other historic theaters, the writers of "Trans-Lux," a publication of the Art Deco Society, say that of all communities, Greenbelt is "the most sensitive to its past." They gave as example the restoration of the Mother and Child statue and the restoration of the Greenbelt Theatre marquee.

The publication notes that "while Bethesda community leaders made little or no effort to preserve the Bethesda Theatre, essentially giving the Historic Preservation Commission the cover it needed to strip the community of one of its few remaining buildings of historic significance, other Maryland communities ... see their historic theaters as a way to revitalize their communities."

Wanted: Pedestrian Advocate for State Advisory Committee

The City of Greenbelt has been invited to nominate an individual to serve as an advocate for the interests of pedestrians on the Maryland Bicycle and Pedestrian Advisory Committee. Until recently, this committee focused on bicycle issues but is now expanding its mission to include the concerns of pedestrians. It currently has 13 members, including seven citizens from across the state and six representatives from state organizations. Committee members are appointed by the Governor. They serve in an advisory capacity to the Governor and to several state agencies. The Committee meets once a month, September through June, at the Maryland Department of Transportation at BWI Airport.

If you would like to be nominated to this committee, or if you would like to nominate someone else, please submit a letter to the City of Greenbelt, 25 Crescent Rd., Greenbelt, MD 20770. If you have questions, please call Kathleen Gallagher, City Clerk, at (301) 474-3870.

Swim Team News

by Leslie Hilliard

While rain, cool weather and the extended school year put a damper on swim practice at the start of the season, Greenbelt swimmers, nonetheless, rose to the challenge.

As an orientation to new swimmers and their parents to our competitive swim season, time trials were held early on Sunday morning. Time trials allow coaches to collect swimming stats on each swimmer for every stroke, and serve as a "dry run" for parents learning new skills such as timers, stroke and turn judges and scorers. New swimmers get a feel of what to expect at the meets.

Holding with tradition, swim team families met for a pasta pot luck dinner under the big oaks beside the pool. Good food, good company and good fun. Swimmers decorated personalized t-shirts or played ball on the lawn while parents made new friends and caught up on old ones.

Early Saturday morning, the Dolphins arrived from Strathmore-Bel Pre Swim Club to challenge Greenbelt's Barracudas in the first dual meet of the season. It was a tough competition. At the end of butterfly events Strathmore was ahead by 10 points. The Greenbelt Municipal Swim Team closed the gap and held the lead by only a few points through the freestyle, breast stroke, and back stroke events. By the end of the individual medley events Strathmore pulled ahead to lead by two points. It came down to the relays. Coaches pored over the freestyle stats of the swimmers in each age group to put together the best teams. Relay teams assembled on deck in their assigned lanes. The buzzer sounded and both teams hit the water. It was close but Greenbelt swimmers closed out their competition. The final score was Greenbelt 256, Strathmore 248. Greenbelt won their first meet of the season.

In addition two Greenbelt swimmers earned the distinction of being triple first place winners. Joseph Lau (10) took first places in the 25-meter butterfly and back stroke, and 50-meter free style. Maresa Like-Matthews (11) took first places in the 50-meter back stroke, freestyle and butterfly.

New Deal Café Has Annual Meeting

The New Deal Café Cooperative held its annual member's meeting on Sunday, June 11. This was the first time that this meeting had been conducted at the Café's new location in Roosevelt Center. Four members were elected to the Board of Directors.

The president of the board, Pat Brent, opened the meeting at 7:22 p.m. with a report of the Café's progress since opening on April 15. She said that the Café is meeting its operating expenses and is "... ready for more customers." General manager of the Café, Peggy Barott, reported that the Café had about 20 thousand dollars in sales since opening. She said that the menu is a success, and that sales have been rising gradually. Barott added that initial difficulties with food supplies have been worked out.

Five members were nominated to serve on the Board of Directors. Elected to two year terms were Terri Rutledge, Coby Stohrer, and Wendy Turnbull. Earl Kepler was elected to finish the one year remaining on Peggy Barott's term (Barott had resigned from the Board in order to assume the position of manager of the Café). They join Pat Brent, who has one year remaining on her two year term. Officers of the Board will be determined at the new Board's first meeting on June 25, 5:30 p.m. at the New Deal Café.

Armed Robbery

5700 block of Greenbelt Metro Drive, June 18, 4:31 p.m., people walking toward the Metro station were approached by two people. One of the two asked for the time and then produced a dark handgun and demanded money. After obtaining money, the robbers took a book bag from one of the victims. After searching the bag and finding no money, the robber threw the bag at the victim and then fled the scene in an unknown direction. Attorney General Warns of Scam

The Maryland Attorney General's Office is warning consumers to beware of a new telemarketing scam. Recently some Maryland residents received phone calls from telemarketers who said they were offering a credit card fraud protection plan but who actually appear to be fraud artists themselves.

The callers said they represented a "fraud watch" service and were mandated by VISA to call all its cardholders. The callers asked the consumer to verify their account numbers, providing the first digit of the consumer's credit card number and asking the consumer to supply the remaining digits. The telemarketers said that the consumer should purchase a credit card protection plan, at a cost of $250, because criminals have been stealing credit card numbers on the internet and that consumers are liable for such unauthorized charges. In fact, federal law limits losses due to unauthorized credit card charges to $50 if the cardmember reports the unauthorized charges promptly. A VISA fraud specialist said their company had not given any mandate to these telemarketers to call VISA cardholders.

a blue four-door 1991 Toyota Camry with Maryland tags HKS640, June 19, from the 6100 block of Breezewood Drive; a dark green 1995 Jeep Cherokee with Maryland tags M151702, June 21, from the 8000 block of Mandan Road; and a blue 1990 Toyota Camry with Maryland tags YFH387, June 21, from the 7200 block of Mathew Street.

Vandalisms to and thefts from vehicles were reported in the following areas: 9000 block of Breezewood Terrace, 7400 block of Frankfort Place, 7700 block of Jacobs Drive, 7800 block of Emily's Way, 7200 block of Sunset Place, and 49 and 71 courts and 400 block of Ridge Road.

Auditorium Renamed

Boarman Auditorium in recognition of Dr. Boarman's 30 years of outstanding service to Prince George's County Public Schools and especially in honor of his years as principal at ERHS. The auditorium has recently been reopened after a fire last winter. Dr. Boarman recently retired after more than a decade as ERHS' principal.

PEDESTRIAN SAFETY MONTH PRESENTS SOME BIKE SAFETY TIPS

- ★ Obey Traffic Signs and Signals
- ★ One person per bike. Riding double is only permitted when carrying a helmeted child in an approved carrier or on a tandem bicycle.
- ★ Ride single file, especially on roads with heavy traffic. Where traffic is light, cyclists can ride two abreast as long as they are not impeding traffic.
- ★ Stay off sidewalks! Riding on sidewalks is illegal, can be dangerous, and is discourteous to pedestrians.
- ★ Share the pathways. Users should allow room for other to pass. Joggers should avoid running in packs. Bicycling is not permitted on hiking trails or in nature areas.
- ★ Keep to the right. All pathway users must keep to the right except when passing. Yield to pedestrians; they have the right-of-way on hiker/biker trails.
- ★ Warn others when passing. When approaching pedestrians, sound your bell or horn or call out, then pass safely to the left.
- ★ Ride slowly down hills, under and across bridges and where trails curve sharply. Reduce your speed when the trail is busy.
- ★ Be alert. Watch for surface hazards like broken glass, gravel, and potholes. Cross railway tracks at a right angle to avoid getting your front wheel caught.

★ ALWAYS WEAR A HELMET!

Glendening Names 'Green Bag' Appointees

The annual "Green Bag" appointments, a list of persons named to serve on state and county boards, commissions, task forces, and boards of elections, was submitted to the Maryland General Assembly by Governor Parris N. Glendening in February. The governor praised the 201 men and women listed this year for their level of experience and their commitment to serving their communities.

Reappointed to the State Board of Dietetic Practice was Suzanne R. Curtis, Ph.D., a 17-year resident of Greenbelt. Curtis is director of the Dietetic Program with the Department of Nutrition and Food Science, where she spends most of her day in teaching. Currently vice chair, she has served on the board for two years. The board licenses qualified professionals and is set up, as are all state boards, to protect the interests of the public.

The Maryland Constitution requires that appointments made by the governor when the legislature is not in session are subject to the approval of the General Assembly during the next legislative session. Individuals appointed during the interim may begin their term before they are confirmed.

The historic "Green Bag" procedure to submit gubernatorial appointments continues a tradition dating from earlier English practice and has been well established since 1951 in Maryland state government. According to the Maryland State Archives, a green bag containing public petitions was often placed behind the speaker's chair in the English House of Commons. During the 19th century in Baltimore City, mayoral appointments were placed in such a green bag. Later the tradition was continued with gubernatorial appointments.

by Nelda Young

When Judge C. Philip Nichols, Jr. addressed the first graduating class of Eleanor Roosevelt High School's Criminal Justice Academy on May 10, he reaffirmed ERHS's attitude toward law enforcement when he said, "Blessed are the peace makers."

Dr. Gerald Boarman, principal of ERHS, referred to the relationship of the special police force assigned to the school as friends, protectors, and surrogate parents to the students at ERHS. Greenbelt Mayor Judith Davis said, "Youth needs to know what makes good police officers," and that is what the officers taught.

Corporal David Buerger and PFC Marty Parker wrote the curriculum and taught the 16 two-hour classes in the Academy program. Buerger said its goal was to build a rapport between the police officers and students, teach the students about law enforcement, and encourage them to choose law enforcement careers. The officers accomplished this goal by introducing such topics as deadly force, driving while intoxicated, self defense, forensics, fingerprinting, narcotics, building searches, and report writing.

This spring the course was an extra-curricular activity. If the Board of Education agrees, however, next year it will be offered for credit as part of the school's regular curriculum.

Half of the 14 graduates of the Academy program reside in Greenbelt. They are Joshua Leiner, Karen Mealey, Lauren Byers, John Pak, Andrew Chambers, Jason White, and Jamie Ivy.

Personal reasons for attending the Academy varied. Junior Jamie Ivy's mother said, "Jamie has always wanted to be in law enforcement. She intends to work for the FBI some day." In the meantime Jamie bats 417 and plays third base on ERHS's varsity softball team that finished second in the state this spring.

Senior John Pak, who is visually impaired, is already a member of the Glenn Dale Fire Department and Civil Air Patrol. He hopes to be a judge some day.

In closing the ceremony, Buerger reminded the group to set realistic goals. Success comes, he said, by reaching out and grabbing it.

Free Concert At Montpelier

Everyone is invited to attend the 22nd annual free Montpelier Summer Concert Series on the Montpelier Mansion grounds off Route 197 at Montpelier Drive in Laurel. Performances will take place every two weeks on Friday evenings 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. on the west lawn.

The next concert is on Friday, July 7 at 7:30 p.m. when "Jimi Smooth & Hittime" will play oldies, blues, and rock 'n' roll.
